

Architect Jacob Mar Joins Jenna Bayer Garden Design

By

AsianWeek Staff

– June 21, 2011 Posted in: Bay Area, Business, Career, Commerce

Jacob Mar and Jenna Bayer

On June 2, Jacob Mar and Jenna Bayer of Mountain View-based Jenna Bayer Garden Design celebrated ‘An Evening in the Garden’, an outdoor garden party hosted by Saratoga resident Karen Knutson. During the festivities, Bayer introduced Mar as the company’s new landscape architect, while also showcasing their creative, personalized, and environmentally sustainable design work onsite. Approximately 60 people attended the springtime gathering.

Of Chinese American origin, Mar’s initial interest in landscape architecture was peaked in high school when he cared for his family’s backyard in San Jose. It was an everyday job that grew into a passion. From there he attended California Polytechnic State University in San Luis Obispo, graduating with a degree in landscape architecture. Mar has worked in commercial landscaping since his graduation; most recently, he was employed by Callander Associates out of Sacramento. Today, he makes his home in Santa Clara.

At Jenna Bayer Garden Design, Mar works diligently to incorporate clients’ personalities into the design via a mix of ornamental and edible planting. The company has designed gardens for countless Bay Area homes and beyond, for clients ranging from NFL football families to Silicon Valley technorati to everyday garden aficionados.

Remarkd Mar, “It’s been great working with Jenna Bayer. We both value gardens that are beautiful and meaningful to our clients.”

For more info on Jenna Bayer Design, Inc., call (650) 988-9600 or visit www.jennabayer.com.